Dead may haunt city development

Real estate. The Mary Help of Christians Church is built on what used to be the largest Catholic cemetery in the city.

Preservationists fighting to protect a historic East Village church happened upon a surprising discovery: the 100-year-old Mary Help of Christians Church was built on an older Catholic cemetery.

The discovery was made the day before community groups were organizing a rally in the hopes of getting developer David Steiner to agree to develop only on the vacant lot next to the church, and to re-use the church structure rather than tear it down.

Steiner has apparently acquired permits to demolish the church, its 150-year-old rectory and a 90-year-old school connected to it, according to Andrew Berman with the Greenwich Village Society for Historic Preservation.

Bodies still there?

"Typically, with cemeteries like this, when they are closed down and quote-unquote moved, oftentimes the movement is far from complete, and it's common to find human remains were left behind."

Berman

It is unclear whether there are still bodies there. Berman said an exhumation was conducted in 1909 when bodies were supposed to be moved to Calvary Cemetery in Queens, but "there is reasonable doubt" as to whether all of the bodies were relocated.

The church was made famous by Allen Ginsberg, who referenced the building in the poem "Fourth Floor, Dawn, Up All Night Writing Letters."

Superstorm. Cuomo: Be wary of Hurricane Sandy 'flood car' sales

Gov. Andrew Cuomo warned consumers on Tuesday to look out for used car sales that could land them with storm-damaged cars.

Buyers can access a database from the National Insurance Crime Bureau to check whether a used car is a "flood car" from superstorm Sandy.

Cuomo warned that around 400,000 cars were flooded after Sandy.

The database runs vehicle identification numbers to check if the car has been declared as salvage by an insurance company participating in the NICB VINCheck program.

Bombings wouldn't happen in NY: Ex-CIA chief

If Tamerlan and Dzhokhar Tsarnaev had been cooking up terror plots in New York City instead of Boston, things might have ended differently — at least according to one man.

Former CIA Director Michael Hayden, speaking in Washington, D.C., on Tuesday at a panel organized by the Institute for Education, pointed to the NYPD's record of spying on Muslim communities, The Hill blog reports.

"The New York police department is far more aggressive, far more invasive, going what's been termed 'mosque crawling' and a whole bunch of other things to permeate the Islamic-American community," he said. "Boston doesn't do that."

Children fight to stop library budget cuts

Reading. Kids gathered at the Kingsbridge Library on Tuesday to help save the New York Public Library from budget cuts.

Children in the Bronx rallied at the Kingsbridge Library to protest against looming budget cuts to the New York Public Library.

The NYPL, which serves the Bronx, Manhattan and Staten Island, is in for a fiscal battering, facing a possible budget cut of $47 million.

This would amount to their total operating budget of $133.6 million being slashed by a third.

The budget cut would threaten 14 of the city's 91 locations.

Bronx library network manager Michael Alvarez is most concerned about this loss of access. This would be the first year that full days would be lost from cuts, he said. It's a loss that he says would be hardest on the city's most vulnerable populations and the people most in need of the libraries' resources.

Weiner takes second place in mayoral poll

Election 2013. The formerly disgraced congressman is coming on strong in a new Marist poll.

It would appear that anyone counting Anthony Weiner out of the mayoral race was mistaken.

In the first poll since the former congressman announced his candidacy last week, Weiner placed second among the registered Democrats surveyed, with a striking distance of City Council Speaker Christine Quinn. Quinn would receive 24 percent of the vote if the primary were held today, the Marist poll found — just five points higher than the man whose political career was seemingly derailed just two years ago by a lewd photos scandal.

Anthony Weiner is second only to Christine Quinn in the new poll. / GETTY IMAGES

Coming up fast

"Too wet for me to @CitibikeNYC to the debate. #JustLostNYCRainBikers Association."

Weiner tweeted

Dr. Lee M. Miringoff, director of The Marist College Institute for Public Opinion, said the race would likely come down to a runoff between the top two candidates. Quinn currently has an edge over Weiner in a head-to-head matchup, commanding 48 percent of support to his 33 percent, but Miringoff stressed that it was too soon to tell.

"The Democratic primary for mayor remains wide open," he said.

Trailing Weiner with 14 percent of Democratic support was Bill de Blasio, then Bill Thompson (13 percent), John Liu (8 percent), Sal Albanese (1 percent) and Erick Salgado (less than 1 percent). More than 20 percent of Democrats surveyed reported that they were still undecided.

With the race heating up, Weiner headed to his first mayoral forum on Tuesday night.

He joked on Twitter earlier that he had planned to try out the city's new bike share program, but that the weather was forcing him to seek alternative transportation.

Council gives tax breaks to city veterans

Armed forces.

New York City's vets will now get an exemption when they move within the city.

Honoring vets

The tax break will give veterans an exemption if they own a home and decide to move within the city.

- The legislation was proposed by the city council to give some financial relief to those who have served in the military. The person also assist veterans in the city.

City Council members announced a new tax break for New York City veterans on Monday, May 27.

Right now, veterans who own homes lose property tax breaks when they move within the city, Council members said.

For benefits to begin July 1, people have to submit an application by March 15 of that year.

But if the resident moves or fills out the application after that deadline, they don't get the exemption until the next year.

The new legislation will provide an exemption for veterans.

"I think we can all agree that we shouldn't be punishing anyone simply because they move," Council Speaker Christine Quinn said. "Providing our veterans with a little financial relief is the least we can do to thank the men and women who have done — and do — so much for our country."

Added Councilman Vincent Ignizio, "Our veterans have served our country with honor and distinction and deserve our thanks — not unnecessary financial burdens."

Last week, the Council also voted to require every city agency to designate one person to be in charge of how their agency might assist veterans.

Under the legislation, each agency must designate one person to work with the Mayor's Office of Veteran's Affairs.

"We hope this legislation will help to alleviate any burdens veterans have faced in the past when navigating city government and allow them to seamlessly access the services they need and deserve," Quinn said.

KARL-JOHAN PERSSON

The CEO of fashion retailer H&M speaks to Metro about skinny models, affordable clothing and Bangladeshi factory workers.

“OUR MODELS WERE TOO SKINNY. THAT’S NOT OK”

Life is going swimmingly for Karl-Johan Persson, H&M’s young, handsome CEO: despite the global recession the cheap-chic chain is doing well. But the recent factory collapse in Bangladesh has put H&M in the spotlight, even though the retailer didn’t use the factory. In an exclusive interview with Metro at H&M’s headquarters in Stockholm, Persson proposes a new solution: a tag added to every piece of clothing that informs the customer if it was made in a safe factory.

Last month a clothing factory collapsed and killed more than 1,000 workers. Now H&M, the biggest manufacturer of clothes in Bangladesh, has signed an agreement where you agree to help your Bangladeshi suppliers pay for safety measures. Are the factories safe now?

The factory collapse was horrific, but our code of conduct bans use of factories in residential areas, so this was not an H&M supplier. But we’ve been working to improve conditions in Bangladesh for a long time. You can never be 100 percent sure. Accidents happen in Sweden, too. We already have 100 full-time inspectors who travel around to our suppliers to make sure they adhere to our code of conduct when it comes to building safety, fire safety, wages, overtime pay and so on. The major change with the agreement is that we join up with other buyers, with trade unions and with the government.

But isn’t the problem that people want cheap clothes? It never makes financial sense for a company to use better factories.

Yes, but it’s a common misperception that cheap brands use certain manufacturers and expensive brands use others. We’re one of 30 to 40 companies buying from many of our suppliers. There are apparel companies that charge their customers low prices, medium prices and high prices. The workers’ pay is the same regardless of which company is buying.

Couldn’t consumers play a role here? If clothes that are made in safe factories with decent wages had a special tag, I would know exactly what to buy.

That would be the very best. Then you’d remove many of these misperceptions that low store prices mean bad conditions for the factory workers or poor sustainability work.

“Customers care about these issues, and that puts pressure on us as companies. It’s not just about maximizing profit; you have to do it in a fair way, too. I want to feel proud today and when I leave H&M and look back at what we’ve done, I want to feel that we were the just company regarding our social responsibilities: caring about the environment, choice of models, social issues.” Persson

In response to the comment, “The change in public attitude toward skinny models is similar to the growing interest in sustainability.”

Firefighters in China rescue baby lodged in a toilet pipe

Found. The residents of an apartment building in eastern China reported the sound of a baby crying.

Video has emerged of the moment firefighters in eastern China rescued an abandoned newborn baby boy lodged in a sewage pipe directly beneath a toilet, in a case that has sparked anger on social media sites.

There are frequent reports in Chinese media of babies being abandoned, often shortly after birth, a problem attributed variously to young mothers unaware they were pregnant, the birth of an unwanted girl in a society that puts greater value on boys or China's strict family planning rules.

In the latest case, the infant was found in the sewage pipe in a residential building in Jinhua in the wealthy coastal province of Zhejiang on Saturday afternoon, after residents reported the sound of a baby crying, state television said late on Monday.

Firefighters had to remove the pipe and take it to a nearby hospital, where doctors carefully

New requirement

Singapore to regulate Yahoo, other online news sites

Websites that regularly report on Singapore, including Yahoo News, will have to get a license from June 1. This puts them on par with newspapers and television news outlets, in a move seen by some as a bid to rein in freewheeling Internet news.

"Online news sites that report regularly on issues relating to Singapore and have significant reach among readers here will require an individual license," Singapore's Media Development Authority said in a statement.

"This will place them on a more consistent regulatory framework with traditional news platforms, which are already individually licensed," the media regulator said. REUTERS

Drug resistance in new China bird flu raises concern

The new bird flu strain that has killed 36 people in China has proved resistant to Tamiflu for the first time, a development that scientists said was "concerning."

The H7N9 virus was found to be resistant to Roche's widely used flu drug in three out of 14 patients who were studied in detail by doctors from Shanghai and Hong Kong.

Tamiflu, which is given as a pill, belongs to a group of medicines known as neuraminidase inhibitors that currently offer the only known treatment option for bird flu. GlaxoSmithKline's inhaled medicine Relenza has the same mode of action. REUTERS

Breach. Chinese hackers access major weapons systems

Chinese hackers have gained access to designs of more than two dozen major U.S. weapons systems, a U.S. report said, as Australian media said Chinese hackers had stolen the blueprints for Australia's new spy headquarters.

Citing a report prepared for the Defense Department by the Defense Science Board, the Washington Post said the compromised U.S. designs included those for combat aircraft and ships, as well as missile defenses.

Among the weapons listed in the report were the advanced Patriot missile system, the Navy's Aegis ballistic missile defense systems, the F/A-18 fighter jet, the V-22 Osprey, the Black Hawk helicopter and the F-35 Joint Strike Fighter. REUTERS

Obama, Christie reunite to promote NJ Shore recovery

Best buds. The political odd couple joked and played games on the boardwalk during a tour of the area.

President Barack Obama and Chris Christie, New Jersey's Republican governor, strolled along the Jersey Shore boardwalk like old friends yesterday, a political odd couple just hanging out together.

The two men had a common purpose: promote the recovery of the Jersey Shore from the aftereffects of Sandy, a superstorm that hit in the final days of last year's presidential election campaign. Obama's well-received show of concern may have helped him win re-election.

So when it came time to throw a football through a hanging tire at the Touchdown Fever arcade game on the boardwalk in Point Pleasant, N.J., it was Christie who had a successful toss, an ungainly spiral that went through the tire, after Obama had tried and missed five times with his left-handed throw.

The two leaders, Obama tall and lanky and Christie mid-height and round, gave each other a celebratory high-five, and then Obama referenced Christie's reelection campaign.

"That's because he's running for office," Obama declared to throngs of tourists, who recorded it all on their smartphones as a light rain fell. Obama received the prize for Christie's performance — a stuffed bear. Then they worked the rope line.

US shuts shady fund transfer system

U.S. authorities said yesterday that they have shut down a Costa Rica-based money transfer company that allegedly provided a digital currency widely used around the world by cybercriminals.

In a statement, officials said authorities in Spain, Costa Rica and New York arrested five people on Friday. They also seized bank accounts and Internet domains associated with the company, Liberty Reserve.

The digital currency is a transferable unit that can be exchanged for cash.

Along with the five arrests, prosecutors filed charges against two more company employees who were still at large in Costa Rica.

According to an indictment filed in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York, "Liberty Reserve has emerged as one of the principal means by which cybercriminals around the world distribute, store and launder the proceeds of their illegal activity."

The indictment said the company had more than 1 million users, including at least 200,000 in the United States. It also said that virtually all of its business was related to suspected criminal activity. REUTERS

Too few salespeople? There's an app for that Digital world.

Shops are using apps, rather than people, to provide a retail experience.

Shoppers walking into a clothing store in New York City's SoHo neighborhood should not be surprised if a smartphone app, rather than a salesperson, greets them at the door.

Some retailers in the United States are starting to communicate with shoppers via a smartphone app called Swirl. It uses in-store sensors to track their location in the shop to send them personalized offers and recommendations.

It's just one of the ways that brick-and-mortar shops are using apps to appeal to younger, more tech-savvy consumers.

"Retailers want to give consumers something that's value-added and does what an expert salesperson might do — for example, tell them, 'Here's some great new products,' or, 'Here's a special offer because we know you've been looking at handbags,'" said Hilmi Ozguc, CEO of Boston-based Swirl Networks, creator of the Swirl iPhone app.

Retailers in New York City and Boston are among the first to adopt the technology, which uses Bluetooth sensors placed on store walls and shelves to communicate with the Swirl app.

Although Swirl's use of sensors to detect shoppers in stores is among the first of its kind, several other apps provide deals or tips when entering a store.

Trayvon Martin. No delay for murder trial in Zimmerman case

A Florida judge yesterday ruled out any further delay in next month's trial of George Zimmerman, the former neighborhood watch captain charged with second-degree murder for last year's killing of unarmed black teenager Trayvon Martin.

Circuit Court Judge Debra Nelson, who ruled against a string of defense motions during a two-hour hearing in Seminole County Criminal Court, rejected a defense request to delay the scheduled June 10 start of the trial.

The killing of Martin on Feb. 26, 2012, ignited protests across the country.

Much of the public outcry centered on race issues because police initially declined to arrest Zimmerman, who is white and Hispanic, on grounds that he killed the 17-year-old Martin in self-defense.

"The whole world is watching to see if everybody in America gets equal justice," Benjamin Crump, a lawyer representing Martin's parents, said after yesterday's hearing.

"Most Americans believe that if the shoe had been on the other foot, Trayvon Martin would have been arrested that night," Crump added, speaking in an interview on CNN's Headline News.

Ex-guard: Bin Laden 'blew himself up' to defy the Navy SEALs

No capture for old men. He claims his boss did it to protect his secrets.

A former leader of the Egyptian Islamic Jihad who was once a personal guard of Osama bin Laden has denied that the head of al-Qaida was shot dead by U.S. Navy SEALs, claiming he blew himself up instead.

Nabeel Naeem Abdul Fattah said bin Laden blew himself up using an explosive belt when SEALs raided his villa in Pakistan in May 2011.

In an interview with the Dubai-based Gulf News, Fattah said: "Bin Laden and his men defended themselves. They fired shots at the helicopter that has carried the U.S. Special Forces unit. As the SEALs killed two of his guards and shot him in his thigh, he triggered his explosive belt."

Fattah claimed that the Americans later chopped up bin Laden's body before disposing of it to destroy forensic proof that he had blown himself up rather than being shot.

"Bin Laden's burial at sea story was fishy ... Barack Obama lied when he claimed that bin Laden was buried at sea." METRO

Abortion fight

Court won't hear Planned Parenthood funding case

In a victory for Planned Parenthood, the U.S. Supreme Court yesterday declined to consider whether the state of Indiana can prevent the nonprofit, which is the country's largest provider of abortions, from receiving federal Medicaid funding for any medical services it offers to low-income people.

Supporters of the law, which was blocked by an appeals court, had wanted to prohibit any government funding of Planned Parenthood's medical programs, such as cancer and HIV screenings, because the group also provides abortion services.

Medicaid is a federal health program for low-income people that is administered by the states. REUTERS

Katy Perry and Robert Pattinson: BFFs

THE FRIENDS,
IN 2010

It looks like Katy Perry might have been behind Robert Pattinson's decision to call it quits with Kristen Stewart, according to Life & Style. Perry, a pal of Pattinson's, reportedly told the "Twilight" star that he deserved better than Stewart after her affair with director Rupert Sanders came to light last summer. "Katy never really supported Rob's decision to get back with Kristen. She always said they wouldn't last," a source says. "Katy told Rob she didn't think their relationship could withstand the cheating scandal. And he deserved better than someone who would destroy a family [like Rupert's]." Since his breakup, Pattinson has been spotted out and about with Perry in New York and in Santa Barbara, where the pair hung out at a hotel and spied on a wedding rehearsal, according to People magazine. "They just sat together and watched," a source says. "They were not affiliated with the wedding party and were not seen mingling with guests."

No Alamo for 'Ye

Kanye West's bid to project his video for "New Slaves" on the Alamo in Texas turned out to be a losing battle when it turned out he had no permit for the spontaneous event, according to Mysanantonio.com.

West announced his intentions to use the landmark on his website, prompting around 500 people — both fans and protesters — to turn up. But police got there first. A similar event in Houston was also shut down. "It's sad that people have such little respect for the Alamo," said a spokesman for the Texas General Land Office.

Kim's ex in a blender bender

Kris Humphries' mom did not take that blender, okay?

Just when the world thought that the most embarrassing thing to ever happen to Kris Humphries was his quickie sham of a marriage to and public spectacle of a divorce from Kim Kardashian, he went and started arguing with an ex-assistant about a blender. Said assistant, one Tracy Paradise, is suing Humphries (dude can't catch a break) for withholding money he owes her. Also, she says his mom went and jacked a Magic Bullet blender from her. Kris says his mom wouldn't do that and is making sort of a fuss about it.

Kris, kindly buy your mom her own kitchen stuff, k?

Slow down, Biebs

Justin Bieber is getting on his neighbors' nerves again, this time because he won't slow down near his home. The pop star was visited by the L.A. County Sheriff's Department in response to complaints about his reckless driving near his home, according to E! News. Police reportedly received numerous calls about the singer's driving on Monday alone, with many saying that his speeding endangers the lives of neighborhood children playing outside.

CULTURE

Twitter feed

We check in with some of Hollywood's biggest names to see what they've been up to — in their own words, in 140 characters or fewer.

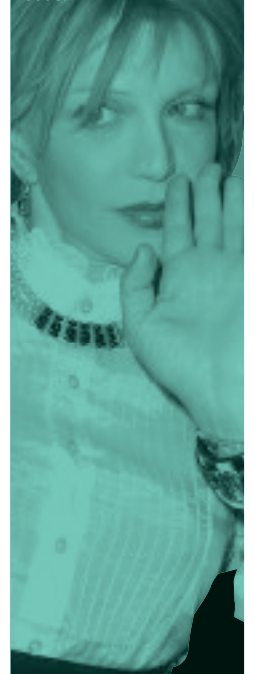

Today, Mindy Kaling is quite full, Marlon Wayans is exhausted, Jonah Hill is reexamining a childhood favorite and Courtney Love finally has someone to feel superior to.

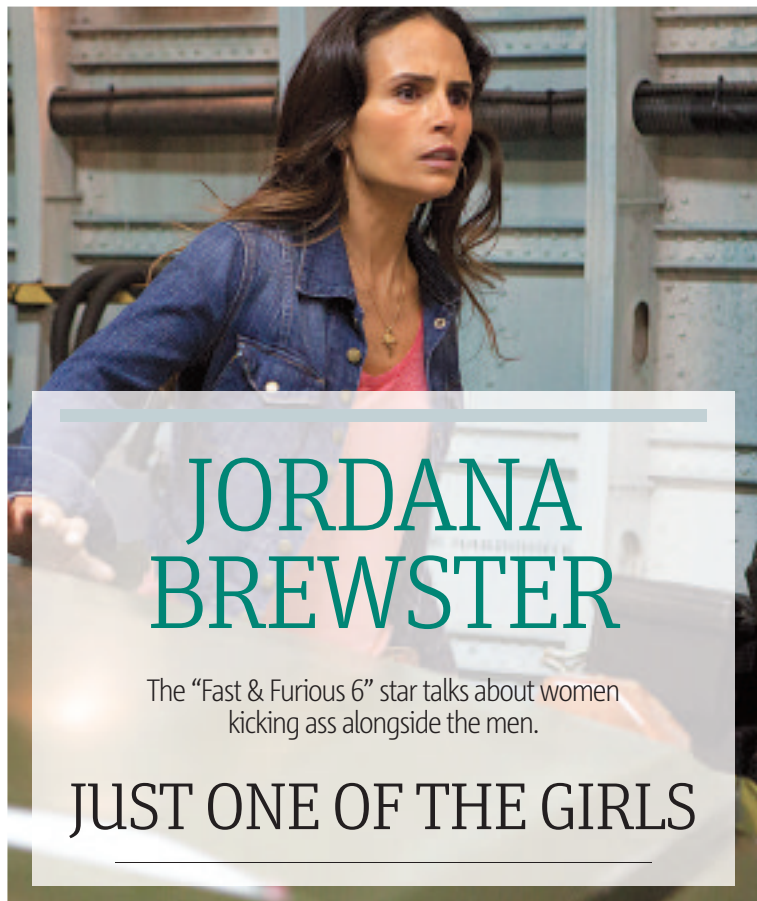

@mindykaling: I think I was the only person who ate food at the bbq I was at today - and I'm fine with that - I just want everyone to know that I know.

@MARLONWAYANS: Haven't slept in weeks... Wtf???

@JonahHill: Willy Wonka's a dark movie. One kid drowns, one blows up and pops, one gets sucked into machinery and one gets turned into tiny particles!

@Courtney: @AmandaBynes pull it together dude.

JORDANA BREWSTER

The "Fast & Furious 6" star talks about women kicking ass alongside the men.

JUST ONE OF THE GIRLS

The "Fast & Furious" movies may be dominated by men like Vin Diesel and Dwayne Johnson. But it makes room for badass women, too. The latest, "Fast & Furious 6," finds room for Michelle Rodriguez, Gina Carano, Gal Gadot and Jordana Brewster to throw down some punches. The latter plays the sister of Diesel's Dominic Toretto and the wife of Paul Walker's Brian O'Conner. Brewster also does time on the reboot of "Dallas."

The girls do as much fighting as the guys here. Are you a little envious that you didn't get a few more fight scenes?

A little bit. That was a sacrifice. ... I love what the baby brings into the mix. I love that it shows [Diesel's character] Dom's very sweet, vulnerable side. The fact that he has a new nephew shows the new dynamic in Mia and Brian's relationship, but I didn't get to kick ass like Gal [Gadot], Michelle [Rodriguez] and Gina [Carano].

Have you ever been in a proper fight?

A girl slapped me once. I went to an all-girl's school in New York, and a girl slapped me in the dark room — I was developing pictures — she slapped me, and I slapped her back. It was a bitch-slapping.

The girls in the movie are quite adept at manipulating the male characters.

When have you used your feminine charms to get your own way?

I only pull it out for special occasions. [Laughs] Um, I would say if I'm trying to get out of a ticket, or if I'm trying to get on a plane at very short notice. I flirt, and, you know, compliments help a lot. I find that disarms people.

You couldn't drive prior to the "Fast & Furious" movies. I take it that you're not into cars — what kind of car do you drive?

Well, I don't know much about cars. I love the car I drive, a Range Rover Sport ... and I love speeding.

Clearly, there's going to be a "Fast & Furious 7." What can you tell us about it?

Well, nothing is settled at the moment. I'd like it to be stripped down a bit more, and I'd like to go back to our roots and go back to L.A. I think that would be really fun, [to] explore what the characters are like on their own turf.

The other Franco

Interview. Dave Franco, James' younger brother, talks about being "a nice guy."

DAVE FRANCO PLAYS
A YOUNG MAGICIAN IN THE THRILLER
"NOW YOU SEE ME."
GETTY IMAGES

Dave Franco is known as two things: James Franco's little brother and an on-screen a—hole. In "21 Jump Street," he played an entitled high school drug dealer. In "Warm Bodies" he was the bitter boyfriend of a girl in love with a zombie. "I promise this is not a representation of me," Franco says. "At first it was really fun and liberating playing something outside of myself, to be mean. But after a while, not only have I exhausted this kind of role, but people start thinking this is how I really I am. I promise I'm a nice guy."

In "Now You See Me," a big-budget, all-star caper, he gets to play a mostly nice guy, albeit a sleight-of-hand artist first seen steal-

Longevity

On playing younger

Franco is 27 years old but looks like a kid. That's why he often gets roles playing younger characters. "I don't love it," he says, "but it's more about the role than the age. Everyone always says, especially in the business, it's great to look a lot younger than you are, for longevity's sake. But sometimes I just want to look my damn age and play a character my age. I don't want to play high school again."

ing from a tourist.

The production style introduced new aspects that he needed to get used to. "Louis Leterrier is a very visual director, and a lot of the scenes have multiple cameras flying about, circling around you," Franco says. "Most of the time you have no idea whether or not the camera is catching you."

He also had to learn card tricks. "I can now cut a banana with a playing card," he reveals. "I wanted it to look realistic."

Though the film's cast is filled with names, it's hard to be starstruck when you're brother is James Franco. He claims his brother didn't get him into the business. "His manager is the one who dragged me into this whole mess," he says. "My brother has been very supportive. But we don't talk about acting all that much. That said, he did tell me to be patient, to wait for projects I'm genuinely passionate about."

'IV Play' a rude awakening of a different variety for The-Dream

R&B. Hip-hop's premier songwriter goes from racy to ratchet with his brand new album.

The-Dream has always been a sex-obsessed R&B genius, but now he's turned things up a notch. On his new album, "IV Play," which drops this week, the singer, songwriter and producer isn't afraid to express his desires. He says the extra dose of risqué talk and bawdy calls for sex are a reflection of where he's at in his life, and where we're at as a society. For the uninitiated, this is ratchet-infused R&B.

"I'd like to think it's a very vibey, adult album," says the man born Terius Nash. "I've been out, I've been in clubs so I know we're in the ratchet era of things. I'm sure there's been a lot of ratchetness on my album because of what's been going through our culture, which is a good thing, by the way. The 'ratchet' word sounds like it's negative, but it's actually more free than most R&B songs could be, than pop could be. 'I don't give a f—' — that's basically what it's saying."

If "IV Play" embraces more explicit come-ons — and a few more drug references — than we're used to, it still boasts the same sound we'd expect from the musical mastermind behind some of the most memorable songs in modern R&B. The-Dream has crafted megahits for the likes of Beyoncé ("Single Ladies [Put a Ring on It]"), Rihanna ("Umbrella") and Justin Bieber ("Baby"), and racked up multiple Grammy Awards, so it's no surprise that industry heavyweights like Jay-Z, Beyoncé, Pusha T and 2 Chainz appear on "IV Play," which rounds out a handful of edgier tracks with sweet serenades and dark, introspective numbers.

The-Dream says he is also making his foray into film by scoring two movies and producing what he says is "a 'Boyz n the Hood'-type flick."

The wave of ratchet hip-hop may not be the most surprising influence on "IV Play," though. You might also hear some classical music making its way into the compositions. The-Dream says it's his favorite genre.

"When those brass horns come in, there's drama tied to that. When the flutes come in, there's some type of majestic feeling that comes over you," he says of the classical compositions he's often listening to. "You're just listening. There's no judgment. It's not 'Yeah, well he sucks, so I'm not listening to whatever his record is or whether he did a magical thing or not or whether that song makes sense.'" The-Dream says American culture pays more attention to fashion choices and rumors than the most important factor concerning an artist — the music.

"All those genius [composers] were probably kind of crazy themselves, but what we took from them most was that their music was outstanding and they were great at it," he says. "Period."

but I can say I've definitely done a lot of work with Bey and Jay," he says. "It's definitely multiple songs."

Health. A drop in nutrients is at the heart of "The Pill Problem," Ross Pelton says.

Ross Pelton, R.Ph., C.C.N., says that his career has bridged two worlds: that of a registered pharmacist dealing with medications, and that of a certified clinical nutritionist concerned with natural healing. This duality has led him to discover what he calls drug-induced nutrient depletion. This side effect of medications can't be measured in nausea, vomiting, headaches or whatever is on those unappealing lists. Rather, drug-induced nutrient depletion happens slowly, over time, as a medication either inhibits absorption or production — or leaches — nutrients from the body. Among the many common drugs that produce this are oral contraceptives, which prompted Pelton to write his new book, "The Pill Problem."

"As a class of drugs, oral contraceptives have an enormous effect on nutrients," said Pelton. "They deplete all B-vitamins, magnesium, selenium, zinc, tyrosine and coenzyme Q10. The only other medication that comes close to its effect on nutrients is steroids."

According to Pelton's book, without these nutrients, ailments such as depression, sexual malaise, lack of energy and insomnia can develop. To avoid this, Pelton recommends nutritional supplements to counteract the depletion.

"Even with a healthy diet, you can't get the therapeutic levels needed," he said. "I'm concerned with optimal health and the prevention of illness. Women who take oral contraceptives should take a high-potency multivitamin and multimineral supplement to provide adequate levels to prevent problems."

Besides a good quality multivitamin and mineral supplement, Pelton recommends additional supplements, too:

- To counteract depression: "Folic acid helps," he said. "We now know that it should be taken in the form of L-methylfolate, the active form. Tyrosine, which is an amino acid, is also necessary. 5HTP and B6 are needed for serotonin production, which helps with mood. Lowered serotonin means lower melatonin, which causes sleeping problems, increasing depression."
- To counteract low energy: "The five nutrients needed are folic acid as L-methylfolate, B12, magnesium, coenzyme Q10 and selenium. Coenzyme Q10 slows down the aging

- My toenails are streaked, discolored, thickened.
- The side of my toenails dig into the skin and hurt.
- I have a large bump behind my big toe (or little toe) which is always red.
- I get an extremely painful "cramp" in the area of my third and fourth toes when wearing shoes.
- My toes aren't straight - they are crooked, bent and hurt.
- I have painful calluses on the ball of my foot which keep building up.
- I have corns on my toes which get thicker no matter what shoe size I wear.
- The bottom of my heel hurts all day, but it's worse when I step out of bed in the morning.
- I have cramps in my legs which always happen when I walk the same distance.
- My ankles are swollen most of the time.
- My feet are always dry and scaly - sometimes they itch.
- My feet just hurt all over when I stand or walk a lot.
- I have numbness, burning, infection, persistent pain, skin rash, or open sores.

Boy meets game. Boy plays game. Game gets released for another system so boy can play game again, this time in a different format. These reissues, known in the gaming world as ports, have really picked up steam this generation. Here are a couple of "new" releases that might give you deja vu.

'Donkey Kong Country Returns 3D'

System: Nintendo 3DS
Company: Nintendo

It used to be that portable systems were the severely less powered cousins of home consoles. This is starting to change, with both the Vita and 3DS getting eerily close to home console horsepower. Case in point? "Donkey Kong Country

"Resident Evil" is now available on more than just Nintendo.

CAPCOM

Sidescroller

LAWRENCE BONK

LAWRENCE.BONK
@METRO.US

Returns 3D" is a near-flawless port of a Wii game from just two years ago.

The game is your average Nintendo sidescroller, meaning it is brilliant. You control the infamous gorilla and his adorable sidekick, Diddy Kong, as they stomp on enemies, avoid obstacles and collect lots of trinkets. It's just as good as it was on the Wii, except now you can play on the toilet. Beware, however, this game can get brutally difficult.

'Resident Evil: Revelations'

System: Xbox 360 / PS3 / Wii U
Company: Capcom

"Donkey Kong" went from a home console to a portable, so it's only natural we also look at an example of the reverse. "Resident Evil: Revelations" was released to critical acclaim last year for Nintendo's 3DS. It was lauded for bringing actual scares back to the "Resident Evil" franchise. Now it's back, on every major home console.

The game still offers up what you loved about early entries. Ammo is scarce, corridors are tight and ooze monster zombie thingies lurk around every corner. The graphics do look a bit dated. Vistas that looked gorgeous on the 3DS look a bit off when blown up. Even with that, it's still an essential title for survival horror fans.

Cell phones. A brand new app improves Android battery life

Battery life is always a huge concern with any smartphone. If you're not careful, you can wind up with quite a few applications running in the background, which drains battery.

Several smartphones now come with built-in software to optimize battery life. For those that don't, Qualcomm released Snapdragon BatteryGuru, an Android application that monitors what's going on behind the scenes on your phone, and adjusts your phone's settings to maximize battery life.

For instance, leaving on the Wi-Fi can drain battery power, as your phone is constantly searching for a Wi-Fi network for connection. BatteryGuru learns your most frequently used Wi-Fi hot spots, and then enables Wi-Fi when you're around.

refresh more than necessary, which adversely affects battery life. BatteryGuru pays attention to app usage patterns, then refreshes your apps based on those patterns. This ensures apps are updated when you need them to be — but aren't draining the battery when you don't want them to.

Horoscope

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20. Go out of your way to associate with friends who always stimulate your thinking. An active conversation might stir up several useful ideas.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22. Your thinking will be unusually sharp in a work-related matter. Your colleagues are likely to be impressed.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22. If you have a good idea regarding a way to improve a sluggish relationship, put it in action.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Substantial progress in the workplace can be made through innovative thinking on your part.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22. If you take the time to talk to a casual acquaintance, you'll discover that you share many interests. This could be the start of a close friendship.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21. There is a strong chance that unusual circumstances will lead to an opportunity. There's something to gain if you hurry.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21. You won't find a better day to get involved in a social activity that has caught your interest.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan. 20. The possibilities for making good purchases look better than usual, especially a large item that can be used by your entire household.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18. As it often does, the race will go to the swift today, so it behooves you to be both a self-starter and a go-getter.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20. The chances of some financial gain are much better than you may realize. However, you must be able to recognize opportunity and work hard to use it.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20. Even though it might be a workday for you, if you can take some time off to participate in an activity with friends, try to do so.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21. Finally, accelerated progress is likely to occur in an endeavor that has been slow. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Look twice, shoot once

The recent collapse of a bridge in Washington is just another sign of more such disasters to come. Most of the blame falls on the lap of Congress members because they didn't put their differences aside and sign off on the president's infrastructure bill. Lesson to Congress: When you decide to shoot down a bill, make sure your foot isn't underneath.

Stop blaming America first

Re: 'Put bad practices out of fashion' (Metro,

May 23) Leave it to letter writers such as R.B. Wilk to express their hatred of capitalism through false concern for the well-being of poor workers. People like that use condescending phrases like "typically American" when describing Metro readers who thought the front page on the Bangladesh factory tragedy was too much for American youth to see. In a global economy, not every country is going to have the living and working standards that we have here. Blaming American business is always the path of least resistance for those content to BAF ... blame America first. KEVIN METZ, VIA EMAIL

Teixeira, Youkilis head to Trenton

The Yankees are close to getting their first wave of injured players back.

Manager Joe Girardi said Mark Teixeira and Kevin

Youkilis will both play in Double-A Trenton today. Teixeira is working his way back from a preseason wrist injury, while Youkilis has been out since April 27 with a back injury. The two could be back as soon as this weekend.

Also, reliever Joba Chamberlain was activated from the DL. Lefty David Huff, who was just claimed Sunday, was designated for assignment in the corresponding roster move. He only appeared in one game and surrendered a run.

MLB. The Mets' COO doesn't hold any illusions toward his struggling team.

Count Jeff Wilpon among those who do not believe there will be a third installment of the Subway Series this year.

During a pregame ceremony honoring Mariano Rivera, the Mets' chief operating officer told the future Hall of Famer, "I wish we could see you in the World Series, but I don't think it will happen."

Rivera responded, "You never know."

The Mets entered the second of four Subway Series games this week in fourth place in the NL East with a 19-29 record. The Yankees are 30-20 and in second place in the AL East.

Wilpon and FDNY Commissioner Salvatore Cassano presented Rivera with a mounted nozzle from a fire hose and a mounted fire call box. Wilpon also asked Rivera to throw out the ceremonial first pitch.

Embattled Jets running back Mike Goodson was reportedly in attendance as organized team activities got underway again yesterday.

Goodson was in Florham Park, N.J., last week for the first round of OTAs, but only to speak with team personnel after his May 17 arrest for possession of marijuana and an illegal hand gun.

Media were not allowed at yesterday's practice, but they will be open to the press tomorrow. Goodson, if made available by the team, can expect to answer a flurry of questions. No one on the team has commented on the arrest other than to say the franchise was "investigating the incident."

Goodson was signed as a free agent this off-season to help replace departed starter Shonn Greene in the backfield. He played for the Raiders last season.

MLB power rankings | by Ryan Hannable

No. 1

Cardinals (32-17)

An impressive 4-2 week moved the Cardinals to the top of Metro's power rankings. Pitching and defense was the theme of the week as they gave up an average of just 2.5 runs per game. With a win on Friday, starter Lance Lynn improved to 7-1 on the year.

No. 2

Rangers (32-17)

Texas dropped two of three to the Athletics at home last week, including a Yu Darvish start, thus the reason for their drop. They still have the best pitching the AL has to offer, posting a 3.44 ERA, tops in the AL as of Sunday. Texas is in a stretch of 12 of 16 road games.

No. 3

Braves (31-20)

Winning eight of nine going into Monday will allow you to move into the Top 3. The Braves beat up on lowly competition in the Dodgers, Twins and Mets, but did so in convincing fashion, outscoring teams 49-25 in that stretch. Now they face the Blue Jays.

No. 4

Yankees (30-20)

The big news coming out of the Bronx last week involved yet another big-name injury as Curtis Granderson fractured his pinkie and is expected to miss at least four weeks. The team is now embroiled in the Subway Series with the Mets this week.

No. 5

Reds (32-19)

After winning five in a row, one would have thought the Reds would have taken over first place, but they are in the same division as the Cards, so second place will have to do. The Reds have an intriguing matchup with Cleveland this week.

Pirates (31-20)

The surprise Pirates are hanging tough in the loaded NL Central. Going into yesterday, Pittsburgh had won five of its last seven games with pitching and defense the key. They held opponents to two runs or less in all but one game in that stretch.

No. 7

Red Sox (32-20)

After a five-game win streak, the White Sox took two-of-three from the Red Sox, dropping them out of our Top 5. They did, however, bounce back by taking three of four from the Indians and they kicked off their set with the Phillies with a win Monday.

No. 8

Tigers (29-20)

A dominant 5-1 week has pushed the Tigers past the Indians for sole possession of first place in the AL Central. The Tigers outscored their opponents 35-18 this week, and now lead the American League in hitting with a .285 average.

No. 9

Indians (27-23)

The big story surrounding the team last week was manager Terry Francona's return to Boston, but the team did get swept in a brief two-game set with the Tigers to drop out of first place in the AL Central. Now they start a brutal stretch.

No. 10

Orioles (28-23)

Despite struggling against the AL East of late, the Orioles remain in the No. 10 spot, mostly because of their powerful offense this year. Going into their clash with the Nationals, they were second in the MLB in runs scored with 253.

Best of the rest

- No. 11 D'backs (30-22)
- No. 12 Giants (28-20)
- No. 13 Rockies (27-22)
- No. 14 Rays (26-24)
- No. 15 A's (29-23)
- No. 16 Nationals (26-25)

Real Estate/Sale

PUBLISHERS NOTE
 All real estate advertising herein is subject to the Federal Fair Housing Act of 1968 and state and local fair housing laws. The Fair Housing Act makes it illegal to advertise any preference, limitation or discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, handicap, familial status, or national origin or an intention to make any such preference, limitation or discrimination. State or local laws may make unlawful advertising that discriminates on the basis of age, marital status, or sexual orientation. Metro US will not knowingly accept any advertising for real estate which violates the law. The law requires that all dwellings advertised are available on an equal opportunity basis. If you have any questions regarding housing discrimination, call the Long Island Housing Services at (800) 660-6920 in Long Island or the Anti-Discrimination Center at (212) 346-7600 in New York City.
